

Saint Joe's SCOOP

November 9, 2020 Edition

Dear Saint Joseph School Families,

Chalk the Walk was a wonderful greeting for our hard working teachers this morning as they entered the building. Thank you to our families for their warm messages of gratitude. The teachers loved reading all of the personalized notes of appreciation. It certainly started our week with a boost of spirit.

Our Fun Run kicked off today with our 1st, 2nd and 5th graders. They were excited and ready to run to support our school. Many thanks for all of your generous support of our fundraising efforts. It's not too late to support our students and school. Pledging is open all week at www.funrun.com.

As a reminder, students may wear their warm weather gym uniforms (i.e. shorts) this week for the Fun Run on their designed "run" day.

In partnership,

Lauren Solomon
Principal

REMINDER:

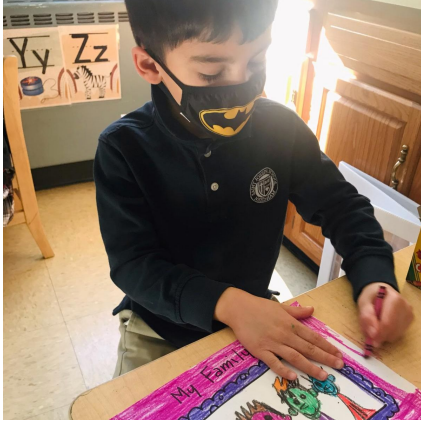

If you are choosing remote learning for your child, please contact your homeroom teacher to let them know and reference the Zoom links below. As a reminder, there may be a 24-hour turnaround for teachers to move the lesson plan and materials to remote learning, however, your child will still be able to participate in class remotely.

Water

Please make sure your students are packing enough water for the school day. We have a touchless refill station in the HUB and a new touchless refill station in the middle school gym.

We want to make sure they are well hydrated!

Angels Unawares at Boston College

This November, Boston College will host a temporary installation of a beautiful sculpture known as Angels Unawares. It will be on campus and the Roche Center has planned a month-long series of free virtual events and lectures. Inspired by Hebrews 13:2, "Be welcoming to strangers for oftentimes many have entertained angels unawares," this piece of art beautifully captures the migrant story. If you are in the area, it is well worth a visit to campus to see! If not, know you are welcome to join us for any of the virtual events!
